Haunting Air Of "Old Dan Tucker" Still Has Appeal

By MACK SAUER

I understand it says something somewhere in the Bible to the effect that there is "a time to dance." Well, that time hasn't arrived as yet for the short fellow.

Upon a man's standing in the world depends whether or not he will enjoy dancing. If he stands enough hands high to walk thru a room with walls six feet high and brush the dust from the ceiling with the top of his head as he goes along, he is a fit specimen for the dance floor. But if he is a fraction of an inch too short to come up to the army standard or five feet four, the dance floor is a place where he should be everywhere else but.

Nine times out of ten a short fellow will draw a partner who towers above him some eight or ten inches and who hasn't been able to reduce to under a mere 250. He looks her over as a wrestler would his opponent, wondering where to grab hold. Her back is usually dancing in nothing but the dance hall and he hesitates about placing his cold trembling hand on it. But soon they are off and he finds himself twirling in the air and wondering whether she will hurt him when she lets him down. She doesn't. She sets him on a window sill and he climbs down unharmed.

"What this country needs, besides a good five cent cigar," is a return to the old-fashioned dances. In which the men were swung around so quickly from one partner to another that the short fellow wasn't noticed," said one Xenia man who shakes a wicked set of feet to some of the old quadrilles. "Then, and not until then, will there be "a time to dance" for the short man."

A sweet old Main street lady, who looked like "a flower from an old bouquet," exclaimed softly with wistful longing in her voice: "How I should love to see some of the old dances revived; the waltz, for instance, to the strains of the "Blue Danube" or the minuet. Or even go back to "Old Dan Tucker" and "The Virginia Reel." Do you think they ever will return?"

"Not until people become so nauseated with jazz that they can endure it no longer," I replied. "Then the pendulum may swing partially back. Until then I don't believe we can expect much improvement."

However, here is one short fellow who is in favor of getting a movement on foot to get dancing back on its feet. Henry Ford has started such a movement in Dearborn. He has secured professional instructors in the old time dances and special classes are being held. Detroit and Dearborn are going back to "The Girl I Left Behind Me" and "Turkey in the Straw," and they like it.

In an interview recently, Ford said: "Every church in the country should provide a hall with a good floor and music for old-fashioned dancing. Old-fashioned dancing should be heartily encouraged by all religious, moral, and educational leaders of the country."

"Ford's idea should not flitter out," said a Xenian. "It has always been interesting to me that a time when jazz music and its weird dance steps were at the height of their popularity, the old fashioned dances should suddenly begin an ascendancy, as evidenced in frequent dances at the Knights of Pythias Hall. It must be an indication that the old style dances still have their appeal and that the call of shuffling feet to the plaintive melodies of old cannot be denied."

It's the quadrilles and square dances and round dances, for me. And just as soon as the snow begins to sift through the cracks in my cabin and the old fiddlers get to smearing the rosin on their bows, you'll find me hitting it up for the great dance spaces where short men are short men but the crowd doesn't notice it.

I can imagine I hear the caller saying:

"Now you swing and circle four. Shake them big feet, jar the ground, kiss your honey and promenade around."

TOO MUCH TO PAY FOR BRIDE

For Ten Dollars Youth Could Do Better

Urbana, Ohio, Aug. 14.—Ten dollars was too big a price for one Champaign County swain to pay to get married in Canada.

The youth breezed into the office of Clerk of Courts Clark Coffey. "I want a passport to Canada," he announced.

"That's easy, said Clerk Coffey. "Fill out this application."

The clerk dipped his pen in the ink well, cocked an official eye at the young man and began to fill in the youth's name.

"Why do you want to go to Canada?" the clerk read from the application.

"To get married," explained the applicant.

"How soon do you expected to start?" was the next question.

"As soon as I can get the next train," the young fellow said.

"All right, sign there, and that gets will be $10," the clerk said, offering the youth the pen.

"Ten dollars?" asked the visitor. "That's the fee for passport applications," said the clerk.

"Excuse me," exclaimed the young man. "I won't pay any ten dollars for that. That changes everything."

The door slammed and the clerk was left to wonder whether the romance would end happily.

Sayre & Hemphill Druggists

Jake and Johnny Quarrel!

Jake bet Johnny Donovan (who tips a mean nut sundae) that he could take 750 worth of Black Flag and kill 10,263 flies in 24 hours. Johnny bet he couldn't but that he could take 500 worth of Flytox and kill 15,264 flies in 30 hours! The contest starts Saturday at noon at the Fair Grounds. Doc Sayre, Brother Clifford and Jack Willett are to referee the contest.

Police and Fountain News!

When a funny tickle comes sneakin' in your throat And the sun blazes down and gets your goat And the Press Fire Ashun beads your brow And you wanta feel different but don't know how Why visit our fountain!

When you feel all sticky and gummy and low And you OUGHT to hustle but you just won't go And your legs are leaden and your head is light And your tummy says "yuh ain't treatin' me right" That's the time to visit our fountain.

Migoodness!

We heard of a lady the other day who knew a man whose aunt had a sister-in-law whose brother had a hired hand whose wife never heard of Jontee Cold and Vanishing Creams! Think of THAT! Generally sold for 50c—this week 39c.

WISE CRACKERS, HICKS, AND ADVERTISING

A widely experienced business man of my acquaintance once told me that if I wanted to find where "hicks" flourished thickest to go to the BIG CITIES—that the smaller towns and cities assayed only a "trace" of this breed. He was telling a fact I'd found out, long, long ago.

Leaving out entirely the moral aspect of the question it's a fact that's been proven to me hundreds of times that the advertising of THIS store would be a teetotal loss if I didn't HAVE GOOD GOODS TO BACK UP MY ADVERTISING!

It's a fact that I CAN'T EVEN WRITE the advertising for an article I don't thoroughly BELIEVE IN! A time or so in the past I've TRIED to write such ads but NEVER do the ads sell goods and NEVER do I get any satisfaction from the proposition.

Folks in this town are "WISE" buyers. If there are any "hicks" among this village they don't trade at MY place very often.

So long, long ago I made a resolution I've NEVER broken!

KEEP ONLY THE BEST GOODS—TAKE ONLY A SMALL PROFIT, ADVERTISE PLENTY, SMILE REGULAR, SLEEP SOUNDLY.

I wish Doc would let ME make a resolution like he's outfitted HIMSELF with. Notice how he resolves to SLEEP SOUNDLY? Does he allow HIS hired help to do THAT? Did any of you ever hear Doc telling Jake and me to forget work and take a nap?

Not on your friend egg plant he don't!

Most of the time Fred and me get along all right. It's when I come around the store that I get in trouble. If he'd let me stay at home and use the phone couple times a week would be a heap better for BOTH of us.

Here's Another!

The same wife whose hired hand husband whose sister-in-law had a sister-in-law who knew a man that a lady customer of ours knew had also NEVER HEARD of Jontee Talcum Powder! It also sells this week for 39c.

Lazy Drinks!

There may be BETTER ways to make a fruit drink than buying the pure rich fruit syrup we sell, mixing it with ice and water and serving but up to date it hasn't been discovered. For 29c you can get Orange, Lime, Strawberry and Pineapple flavors and make 40 regular glasses full.

One pound of Cascade Writing Paper 50 Envelopes, 59c.

A rare opportunity to lay in a full supply for summer correspondence. Beautifully finished and with that crinkly wealthy look that finicky folks insist on.

Kleenzo Tooth Paste 19c.

Not a great big tube because it couldn't carry quality if it was. It generally sells for 25c.

The New Invention Is Prospering!

Since our announcement some time ago of this picture box that takes pictures of whole families at a time folks have besieged us to sell them one. We have been doing this thoroughly. If interested ask for a Kodak the name most people seem to insist on calling them.

A. W. TULLIS BUYS OUT ELEVATOR AT EMERY CHAPEL; WILL MOVE

A. W. Tullis, for the last five years manager of The Xenia Farmers' Exchange, West Main Street, and Robert Ireland of Wilmington, have bought the co-operative farmers' elevator at Emery Chapel in Clark County.

The new owners have taken possession of the elevator, and will change the name to that of The Emery Feed and Grain Company. Mr. Tullis has severed his connection with the local firm, in order to take personal management of the new business. His permanent successor as manager of the Xenia Farmers' Exchange has not been appointed. F. P. Hastings, who is connected with the firm, has been appointed manager temporarily.

The Tullis family is still living in Xenia but plans to move later to a home near Mr. Tullis' business.

TRAFFIC DEVICE IS INSTALLED AT MAIN INTERSECTION HERE

Installation of Xenia's new stop and go traffic regulating device at Main and Detroit Streets by officials of the Greene County Auto Club was practically completed Friday. The new system will probably be placed in operation next week, it is said.

The signal presented the city as a gift by the auto club, is said to be the last word in devices for regulating motor traffic.

The device is set in a concrete base, mounted on a tall iron pedestal and can either be operated automatically or by hand control. It is equipped with red, yellow and green lights, which flash at designated intervals by a novel weight dropping system.

The system will replace the former flower box at the intersection and will be operated on Saturdays and on week-days during hours of the heaviest traffic.

PEOPLES COMPANY ANNOUNCES GAS CUT

A slashing cut in the price of gasoline to consumers was announced Friday by the People's Oil Company, Bellbrook Avenue.

The company announced a price cut to motorists effective at once, which may precipitate another gasoline price war in Xenia. This company began selling gas for 19 cents a gallon Friday, as compared with 21 and 22 cents being paid regularly in the city.

The drop is the first in the prices of motor fuel for some time and as announced Friday, offered motorists an economic advantage in laying in gasoline supplies. The company handles United States Navy oil and gas and the price reduction is also effective on all other types of its products.

BACK TO NORMALCY IN ECUADOR.

SECLUDED Quito, where it's always afternoon, somnolent Guayaquil, where "douce far niente" may be perfectly enjoyed, are once more in the limelight. Reports from each point indicate that the Ecuadorian has ceased his avocation of swatting mosquitoes and resumed his vocation of shooting his neighbor full of holes.

For at least ten centuries carving up his fellowman, or plugging his body with unexpected bullets, has been the Ecuadorian's ruling passion. In the Tenth Century, the Quito Indians were conquered by their more warlike rivals, the Scuris. Soon after the Scuris put the Quitos out of business the Incas came along and kicked the Scuris down stairs.

When the accomplished cut-throat, Francisco Pizarro, landed near what is now Guayaquil a little more than 400 years ago, he found two Inca brothers, Atahualpa and Huascar, who had inherited a divided kingdom from their father, engaged in a revolution that would have warmed the cockles of O. Henry's heart. Skillfully playing Huascar against Atahualpa, Pizarro contrived to incite each to undo the other—a formula that has more than once since been employed by the white man coveting the red man's domain and possessions.

It was given to Benalcazar, the Spanish Captain, to finish the work begun by Pizarro. In 1534, the Spanish yoke had been slipped securely upon the Inca neck. For 300 years less 14, thereafter, the Spanish did to the Indians in the neck of the woods now known as Quito what the Jew had done a great many centuries before to the Philistine near Jerusalem. With the aid of Antonio de Sucre, one of Simon Bolivar's lieutenants, the Ecuadorian in 1820 contrived to shake off the Spanish yoke. The battle of Pichincha fought in that year is Ecuador's "Yorktown." In the succeeding 105 years, the history of Ecuador is made up almost equally of campaigns directed against the mosquito that breeds yellow fever, and of revolutions aimed at the political party in power.

When Major General Gorgas, representing the Rockefeller Foundation, stamped out yellow fever in ports like Guayaquil and inland towns like Quito, students of Ecuadorian character apprehended that extinction of the yellow fever mosquito would be succeeded by revival of Ecuador's national sport—revolution. These critics held that the mosquito was to the Ecuadorian revolutionist what the flea is said to be to the dog. The flea keeps the dog from thinking all the time he's a dog; the mosquito kept the Ecuadorian from thinking all the time he was a revolutionist.

ALIENISTS' TESTIMONY.

THE first five alienists testifying in the case of Russell Scott, the alleged murderer under sentence of death in Chicago, declared the man to be mentally deficient. They said, in explanation of their opinions after examining the prisoner, that he suffered from paranoid dementia, that he had delusions of persecution, that he was not oriented to his surroundings in the county jail, etc. On the other hand, the first three of his jailers called to the stand testified that they believe the man sane. Probably the testimony of the jailers is really worth more than that of the alienists. Doubtless the jailers are men of ordinary common sense, while doubtless the alienists magnify their specialty and would find reason to believe anyone mentally deficient if the question were raised.

There are two questions which, in all common sense, should decide the fate of a person accused of a coldblooded murder. One is: Did he do it? The other is: When he did it, was he in mental condition to distinguish right from wrong? The latter question is generally confused, rather than clarified, by the testimony of alienists. Think of showing clemency to a crafty and brutal murderer on the ground that he is not oriented as to his surrounding in the county jail! We asked a thoughtful man yesterday if he had read the alienists' testimony in the Scott case in the morning paper. He said he read the first two paragraphs of it and was too disgusted to read further.

WHEN WE PLAYED SHOW
It used to cost a penny in that dear departed time
When I was once a little boy, and now they charge a dime
We used to let the children in for pins to see our play,
And now the tiniest little tot in cash is asked to pay.
But otherwise, it seems to me, old friends of long ago,
They do the things we used to do when we played show.

The youngsters here at Pointe Aux Barques, as lovely girls and boys as ever cared for little dolls or begged their dads for 10c
Have lately entertained us with some clever vaudeville.
Seven acts surpassing anything the Shuberts find to bill,
And speaking as a critic now I'd say with pride aglow,

The acting was as good as ours when we played show.

For days before this glad event, our cottages seemed bare,
Some missed the blankets from their beds, some missed a rocking chair.

A screen was pilfered from our room, I faced a sorry plight
I missed the flannel trousers I had planned to wear that night.
And then I stumbled to the cause, a fact I ought to know,
We also took a lot of stuff, when we played show.

Then came the great performance and one mother said to me,
"Our blankets are their curtains here I very plainly see."

And when a youthful star appeared, I said, "Well, I declare!"
There are the flannel trousers I have searched for everywhere!
Those boys made sixteen dollars from their one performance, though,
Which shows what amateurs we were when we played show.

LIGHT

"And God said: 'Let there be Light!'"

So many things disappear with the creeping away of the light of day. I stood upon a high hill today and watched the sun go down into its hiding place for the night. Gradually it drew its draperies about itself. There were no clouds but the sky took upon itself a soft and delicate tint of pink that the rose uses to smile through.

And soon there was nothing but the gray-blue of the night sky with the stars peeping out.

I thought of the beautiful trees, the gardens of flowers, the gay and happy children who romped in the parks and yards and of the happiness that this lovely day of light had brought about.

The darkness with its night for sleep and rest, however, gives its few hours for reflection, association and study.

But the Light—it has stamped so many pictures of beauty upon our memories and warmed the fields where the grain grows and brought health and vigor to all life.

I come to my library. I turn on the electric light and the things I loved during the day in my room again become brightened by this artificial light made possible by the long toil of a man. I think of Mr. Edison and of the billions who see in their homes and out upon the streets because of what he invented.

What we need so sorely is light in our minds and in our hearts.

Thought is the Sun which lights up our pathway through life. If we think we see light and seeing we are enabled to walk safely ahead.

Nothing should throttle Light.

I have thought much of that trial in Tennessee. We do not need laws to tell us what shall be taught in our schools, but men and women who will make it easier to teach the real truth from day to day. The truth never can harm or hurt. We should have the truth always and all people should be left free to think as they wish.

A world of thinkers is a world walking straight ahead!

HOBBIES OF THE GREAT AND NEAR GREAT AS TOLD BY NEWS WRITER

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the nineteenth of a series of intimate sketches which reveal the national political figure as a "brother under the skin" to the man behind the plow, the white collar worker or the day laborer. Others will follow.

SENATOR PAT HARRISON
Possessor of the most engaging personality in official life, Senator Pat Harrison (D., of Miss.) has cultivated the hobby of playing "Pollyanna" to the rest of the grim old world.

His ready fount of humor, wide friendly smile and likeable pleasantness have won him the largest circle of friends in the nation's capital. Few politicians have ever come to Washington as little known as the Mississippi Senator and yet won a niche so high in the affections of his fellowmen.

Harrison is probably the only Democrat in Congress ever to wantonly denounce the Republican Party and yet actually make the Republicans like it. His speeches in the Senate are replete with witticisms, spoken through friendly smiles, and his Republican colleagues enjoy the attacks just as much as his Democratic co-workers. Although a Democratic standard-bearer, he has never made a foe by his debate. On the contrary, he has actually added to his friendships.

SPEECHES PLEASED COOLIDGE
In fact, he even made President Coolidge like his speeches while the President was serving as presiding officer of the Senate. The President said so himself, when Harrison called to pay his respects, shortly after the former Vice-President entered the White House.

"Hello, Mr. President!" said Harrison.
"Hello, Pat," came the Presidential greeting. "Your voice is the most familiar thing about you. I certainly have missed your speeches."

Shortly afterward the President heard that Harrison was to make a speech in Boston. Without a word to Pat, the President wrote to several Boston friends urging them to see that Harrison was given "the treatment—a good follow deserves."

FOUGHT FOR CAREER
The Senator's friendships among capital employees are just as warm, for Pat was a college waiter, a hack driver and a newsboy in the long ago. He knows what it means to struggle for a living.

His career, in truth, reads like the works of Horatio Alger. Harrison started as a newsboy in Crystal Springs, Miss., fought for his education as a hack driver and a waiter, graduated with honors, became a school teacher, studied law, was elected District Attorney, made good and was promoted to the national House of Representatives by his constituents and finally entered the Senate by defeating Senator James K. Vardaman, who had won his toga by the greatest majority ever given a Senatorial candidate in Mississippi.

The Senator's material achievements are really amazing. His father died when Pat was three years of age, leaving the family in straitened circumstances. When nine, Pat began to make his own living by selling newspapers. He was so successful that some weeks, during sessions of the State Chautauqua nearby, he cleared as much as $200 from his "business."

FROM WAITER TO SENATOR
Through a friend, Hulet F. Ahy, now of Tulsa, Okla., the Senator entered Louisiana State University, earning his way by working as a waiter. His serving on tables only added to his credit, and he was the hit of the campus. His quick smile and unfailing humor carried him over many a rough spot and were instrumental, ultimately, in building up such a following in Mississippi that he finally won a seat in Congress. His subsequent defeat of Vardaman for the Senatorial toga ranks as one of the greatest political overthrows in the history of the South. In sixteen years he went from a waiter's job to the Senate.

It is the same Pat Harrison in public or private. Off the Senate floor, Republicans gather to hear Pat's humorous anecdotes with as much delight as the Democrats. IS ARDENT SPORTSMAN
Pat is an ardent baseball fan and a real student of the game. In his college days he played the game as a pitcher. Later he pitched for a semi-pro team which claimed the State championship of Louisiana.

SECRET IN NAME
There is one secret in Pat's life and that is his name. He was christened Byron Patten Harrison after a maternal uncle. When came of fine old English stock. Early in his life he was nicknamed Pat, and the Irish cognomen stuck.

As the Senator explains:
"Everybody called me Pat, it was so easy to remember, and they all forgot the rest of my name. So I merely accepted the inevitable and called myself Pat, too."

Tomorrow—Senator Robert Stanford.

ROOSTER CAUSES FATAL INJURY

Defiance, O., Aug. 14—Spurred to death by a rooster!

This could almost be said, so to speak of Mrs. Mary Seibel, whose body was buried here yesterday.

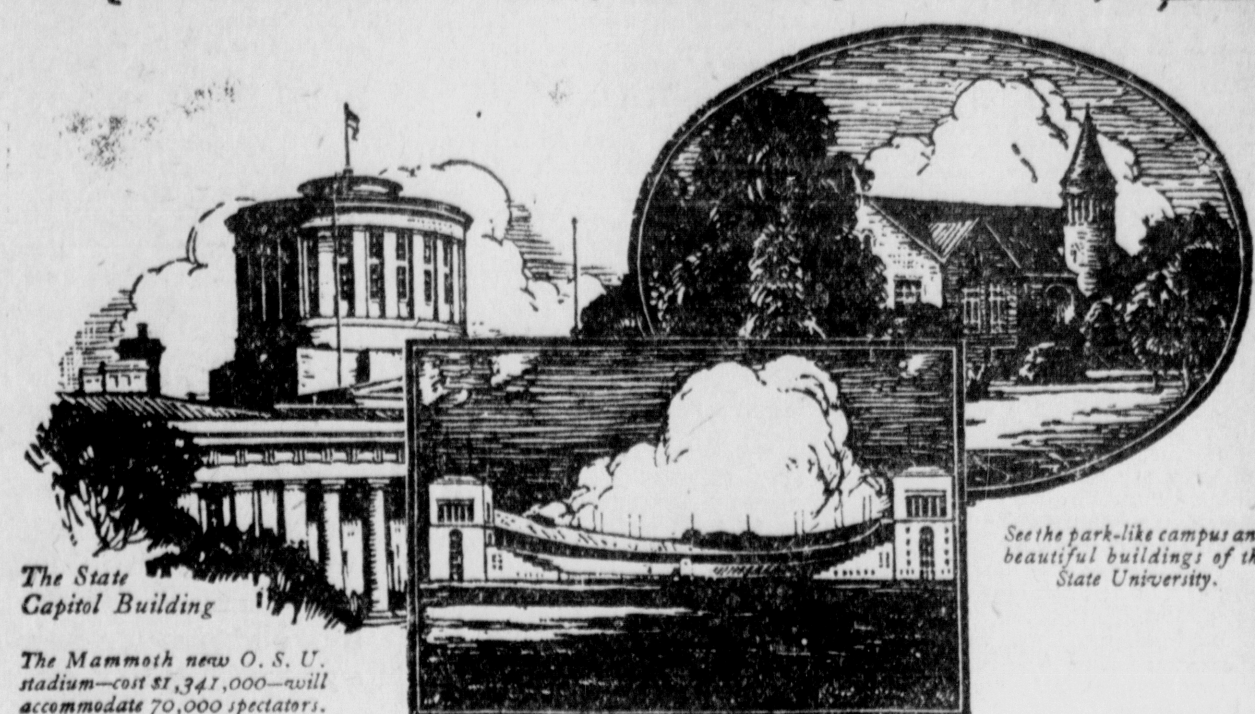

Two weeks ago Mrs. Seibel tried to catch a rooster in her chicken yard. The bird struck her hand with his spur and inflicted a small scratch. Mrs. Seibel thought nothing about the injury. Several days later, however, blood poison developed, causing her death.

Columbus—Seat of Ohio's Government

In 1816, when Columbus was founded, all travel was by horseback. The site of this city—then a dense forest—was arbitrarily chosen by a committee of early Ohioans appointed to select a central location for the seat of government. This accounts for the network of highways by which Ohio motorists today can reach the Capitol City from all parts of the state.

The historic National Highway from the Atlantic to the Mississippi, built years ago by the U. S. Government, passes through Columbus. It brings hundreds of tourists from other states who view Ohio's stately Capitol, the Governor's Mansion, the great University, the grim, gray

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE ANSWERED.

PLANS TO ENFORCE SQUIRREL HUNTING LAW MADE KNOWN

Columbus, O., Aug. 14—Warning that drastic action will be instituted against all persons found violating the Ohio law governing squirrel hunting was voiced here today by D. O. Thompson, chief of the state division of fish and game.

Thompson's warning was issued after being informed unofficially of reports that landowners in Darke and Athens Counties have been complaining recently that a number of hunters were shooting young squirrels out of season. Much of the shooting in Athens County, it was said, was being done by unemployed men seeking food for their families.

Attention was directed by Thompson to the statutory provision authorizing the levying of fines up to $200 by local courts against persons convicted of hunting out of season. Thompson promised that all resources at his command will be utilized in aiding local authorities in apprehending and prosecuting such offenders.

Thompson pointed out that the deputy state game wardens would obtain all possible evidence in support of prosecution and that the severity of the offense, as well as information as to whether the accused had been guilty of similar offenses, doubtless would be factors in the determination of the size of the fine.

Endorsement was given by Thompson to the proposal that the game laws be amended so as to NOT only provide for forfeiture of license by violators of game laws, but, also, to decree that offenders under sufficient provocation, NOT be permitted to obtain a license again.

The squirrel hunting season opens September 15th and ends on October 20. The law prohibits the squirrel hunter from bagging more than five squirrels a day, and prohibits their sale.

INMATES WILL GET DENTAL WORK FREE

Columbus, O., August 14—Recommendation that the practice of charging inmates of the Boy's Industrial School at Lancaster for dental work be discontinued and that $874.17, collected for such services be paid into the treasury, is contained in a report on file today at the office of State Auditor Tracy, covering examination of the records of this institution for the period from August 8, 1922, to December 17, 1924.

The report also advises that a balance of $1,222.46 in the industrial and entertainment and inmates' funds, now drawing no interest, be put out on interest.

The claim is made that $234.41, transferred from the inmates' fund to the contingent fund at the Lancaster institution be paid into the state treasury on the ground that this money belongs to boys paroled or who escaped and that it would be difficult if at all possible to locate the rightful owners of the money.

A SHOPPING GUIDE FOR THE BARGAIN HUNTER

NOT POSSIBLE TO CLASSIFY

BY MACK SAUER

SCHOOL DAYS

One of the Hammer Club members had company and spaghetti for supper last night. He had a time keeping the spaghetti and his wife out of his beard. Other problems came up. Among them were some of the old Ray's Arithmetic problems. Remember any of these?

1. Xenia, Ohio, is in what longitude? A man enters a telephone booth in Xenia at 9 a. m. and puts in a call for John Jones at Dayton. What time in the afternoon is it when he finally gets Dayton?

2. A young lady from Yellow Springs went into a store to buy material for a bathing suit. The material cost 50 cents per yard. How much did the suit cost her? ANSWER—20 cents. What fraction of the girl will the suit cover? What is a proper fraction? An improper fraction?

3. Jack borrows $5 from Mack and promises to return it within one week. When is Mack likely to get his money back, if ever? ANSWER—Never. What is the meaning of the word "Gratitude"?

4. Wheeling, W. Va., is in longitude 80 degrees 42 minutes west; Bridgeport, Ohio, across the river from Wheeling, once had the longest bar in the world. What kind of a time are they having now?

5. A newspaper claims to have 50 per cent more circulation than its competitor. A Hammer Club member claims New Jasper is larger than Marion, Ohio. A Ross Township farmer says The Xenia High School is smaller than the Ross Township Centralized school. Which of the three is off? ANSWER—All.

If Little Dick Kerr can pitch the sort of ball he did a few years ago the White Sox are going to cause a lot of trouble for Washington and the Mackmen in the scramble for the American League pennant. Manager Collins of the Chicago team has one of the strongest pitching staffs in the game with Faber, Thurston, Lyons, Robertson and Blankenship. Adding Kerr is putting a lot of punch into the White Sox defense. Kerr was a member of the Pale Hose nine when Gandy, Weaver, Jackson and others were kicked out because of their poor work in the series of 1919. Kerr always pitched his head off and there was never anything crooked on his part. The reason he quit the White Sox was on account of salary. Comiskey gave the tiny southpaw a very tiny pay check and the half pint twirler left the Roman flat and went into independent ball but he soon tired of that and applied for reinstatement and got it.

Steve O'Neill veteran catcher of the American League, was released by Miller Huggins of the Yanks, marking the passing of one of the brainiest catchers of the big show. He first played organized ball back in 1910 with the Elmira club but later went to Philadelphia and then to Cleveland where he caught for thirteen seasons. He was then traded to Boston and then the Yanks got him. He hit .264 while he was in the big show. He never was a great hitter but the way he knew how to handle young pitchers was one of his biggest assets. Tris Speaker of the Cleveland Indians as no doubt regrets that he and I as he has not been able to get his twirlers to pitch winning ball since. Donohue is the leading Red twirler with seventeen games won and nine lost while Rixey is second with fifteen wins and ten defeats and Luque third with thirteen victories and eleven defeats. Together these three twirlers have been pitching some wonderful ball for the Green City tribe as they have won forty-five of the Reds victories while losing but thirty games. Luque allows the least hits and has the most strikeouts to his credit while his control seems not as good as the other two hurlers as he has walked around sixty batsmen. He has been very successful against Boston, which team he has trimmed three times. He has defeated the Giants the same number and lost twice to them. He has pitched fifteen complete games and of this number has won ten. Donohue has flaired in more complete games as he has pitched eighteen and lost but one.

RESERVES TO PLAY DAYTON NINE HERE

Sunday afternoon at Washington Park the Reserves will stack up against a real baseball foe when they meet the Midway Service nine of Dayton at 2:30 o'clock. Rube Merchant, who worked the Waynesville game in excellent manner, will no doubt call the balls and strikes Sunday as sickness prevented him from so doing last week. The Midway team is being managed by Norman Witte who never fails to gather together a real classy bunch of pros. They got a late start but have been winning regularly in the last month. They played Eaton twice beating them by a 3 to 0 score while they lost next time by a 5 to 3 count. They hold wins over Nickels, Metros, Shiloh and other fast nines around Dayton. One star in particular the fans want to watch is Gaylor, former first sacker of Harshmanville. The traffic cop sure knows how to play the first sack and he hits the ball very hard. The Simmons brothers are also playing for Witte. Fennor is slated to do the twirling while Leiz will catch. With this array of stars and several more the Midway bunch is confident that it can hand the locals the same dose that Waynesville did two weeks ago.

MICHAEL'S MARRIAGE

By MICHAEL

CHAPTER 12.

Michael was preoccupied when they sat down to dinner. He listened indifferently to Lilah's conventional gossip about events of the day.

"I went around to see Mrs. Horner this afternoon," he began. "She had left the hospital and gone back to work—in a laundry."

"No!"

Michael ignored her exclamation as he went on: "I took her home, after inducing the manager of the laundry—I suppose it was the manager—to let her rest the remainder of the day. She looks awfully weak."

"She must be! How foolish of her to try to go back to work so soon!"

"Afraid of losing her job. Must have to support that husky husband of hers. Anyway, I mentioned the matter of a money settlement."

"But should we do anything about that before it comes up in court? They may not decide that I am to blame."

"Her forehead wrinkled delicately in a frown. "Oh, I think we should give her something." He lapsed into silence as he considered whether he should tell her about Mrs. Horner's daughter. Would she understand? Quickly he decided.

"Dearest, a strange thing happened when I went to the Horner house, a wretched old building, looking for her. I found one of the most beautiful girls I have ever seen. It seems she is a daughter of the Horners, and she is illiterate and coarse in her speech, so much so that it grates on your nerves, because of her beauty."

"She has marvelous hair and eyes, and smooth, silky skin. Furthermore, she has poise. In such surroundings, she is a miracle. Ziegfeld or the movies could make her famous."

"She was regarding his eyes curiously.

"How old is she?"

"About 18, I guess. Just blooming into womanhood. If only she wouldn't open her mouth and speak!"

"You seem to be quite impressed by her charms."

Her manner of uttering the words annoyed him, but he laughed, with a snort.

"Naturally you'd think that. I'd like to do something for her. It's a shame for her to waste away in such a place. A lily in an ash heap!"

She broke off a piece of roll and buttered it with infinite care. "Well, what are you going to do? Spend some of your $100,000 check for diamonds and furs?"

"Oh, dear, don't be ridiculous! I'm sorry now that I showed you that check, for I've heard nothing else. And as for the girl, I didn't think you'd understand!" He wondered where he was going to find a job for the young woman he had promised her mother to place in a position.

"Don't be ridiculous yourself! Do you suppose these people will understand?" She became pointedly sarcastic. "Such people usually understand when a married man takes an interest in their daughters!"

"But I want you to help me. I think you could be a big influence upon her! It's a shame to let her stay in that hole."

"We must excuse Lilah for the thoughts that surged into her mind. What was she to think? This was the first time she had ever seen. It seems she is a daughter of the Horners, and she is illiterate and coarse in her speech, so much so that it grates on your nerves, because of her beauty."

"She has marvelous hair and eyes, and smooth, silky skin. Furthermore, she has poise. In such surroundings, she is a miracle. Ziegfeld or the movies could make her famous."

"She was regarding his eyes curiously.

MIDDLETOWN CIVIC ASSOCIATION WILL GIVE FAIR EXHIBIT

Columbus, Ohio, August 14—Ohio communities and citizens will have an opportunity to study the "Civic Association Plan" at this year's state fair, according to an announcement made today by G. R. Lewis, manager of the fair.

Lewis has invited officials of the Middletown Civic Association, where the movement has been pioneered and found successful, to sponsor an exhibit in the Coliseum.

The Civic Association movement links under one central administration and budget, every civic and social agency, thereby, according to officials of the association, materially lowering administration costs and preventing all duplication of effort among the various civic and relief agencies. In effect the "Civic Association Plan" brings the functions of the Chamber of Commerce and Community Chest under one administration.

Governor Donahey has endorsed the plan.

Invitations have been extended to city officials, chamber of commerce secretaries and their boards of directors, to visit and study the plan as it will be pictured in detail at the fair. An official from Middletown will be continually in attendance throughout the fair period, August 31 to September 5, to lecture about the plan.

Letters of inquiries about the exhibit have already been received by the Middletown association from Chambers of Commerce at Alliance,

Marion, Zanesville, Findlay, Tiffin, Kenton, Van Wert, Barborton and others.
